The Pacific Flyway Project in Cordelia Ca. is moving along and will soon be hosting hundreds of people to the Suisun marsh.

There are two properties that are contiguous to the Flyway project located at the end of Thomason lane that present a potential risk.

When the king tides coincide with runoff from heavy rains, the entire area floods. It's at these times when untreated sewage is allowed to flow freely into the marsh.

SRCD has allowed these conditions to exist for a long time with out making any effort to correct it. My hope is that your agency will act more responsibly and require this situation to be mitigated.
